

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN.

COLUMN DEDICATED TO TIRED MOTHERS AS THEY JOIN THE HOME CIRCLE AT EVENING TIDE.

Good breeding is like affection; one cannot have too much of it.

There is always a ray of light to pierce our gloom, if we will not close our eyes and refuse to see it.

There are a great many things in this world that we are not sure of but there is one thing we may be sure of—"Be sure your sins will find you out."

Women are the majority in the church on earth, and it is reasonable to suppose they will be three-fourths of the population in heaven.

Would that our busy toilers could realize that they must enjoy passing days, if they would be happy. The pleasure to which they look forward seldom comes. The man or woman who has not learned contentment and how to find delight in the present, has little reason to expect it in the future.

Be content to do the duty that lies nearest you, and look not to man for praise and approval. 'Tis not so much what we do as what we are, and as to "what we are" we speak most forcibly through our actions but we cannot act unless there is something within that impels us to action. We are touching our fellow beings on all sides. They are affected for good or evil by what we are, by what we say and do, even by what we think and feel.

Many in their great anxiety for gain undertake too much and work like slaves to accomplish it, only to find at the end of the year they have gained little by it. Think more and work less. Life is short and it was meant that you should enjoy it. Are you fretted and despondent? Then rest. Take more sleep; have a holiday. Get cheered up and cheer up those about you. While your life should be a busy one let it also be a happy one. Do not undertake too much. Be not too anxious. Be cheerful, truthful, hopeful and contented.

Success and Failure.

Energy, temperance, perseverance and sound judgment will enable any man to gain a competence, or even more but this spirit having once seized upon a man, needs wise control, for it will not willingly loose its hold. It drives him on and on. So many paths are open, so much is to be done, such rare prizes are in sight. No wonder the brain grows heated, and the determination to rise higher fixed.

Many succeed—so many that furnish example and spur to multitudes of others. But by far the larger number are only partially successful, while not a few fail altogether. Failure, or partial failure, may be due to things one can or cannot control—to foolish investments, gambling in stocks, extravagant evil habits, or to ill-health, family sickness, the care of dependent relatives, or the fury of the elements. The result is a large number of overworked, soured, embittered lives. And the number is by no means all made up from the unsuccessful people. Many of the most successful as the world counts success become such by wearing out their own bodies and brains, and often those of their wives and children.

WHAT SAVED HER LIFE

Mrs. Martin Tells About a Painful Experience that Might Have Ended Seriously.

Riversville, W. Va.—Mrs. Dora Martin, in a letter from Riversville, writes: "For three years, I suffered with womanly troubles, and had pains in my back and side. I was nervous and could not sleep at night.

The doctor could not help me. He said I would have to be operated on before I could get better. I thought I would try using Cardui.

Now, I am entirely well. I am sure Cardui saved my life. I will never be without Cardui in my home. I recommend it to my friends."

For fifty years, Cardui has been relieving pain and distress caused by womanly trouble. It will surely help you. It goes to the spot—reaches the trouble—relieves the symptoms, and drives away the cause.

If you suffer from any symptoms of womanly trouble, take Cardui. Your druggist sells and recommends it. Get a bottle from him today.

dren. How many men reach the point where they mean to enjoy life, only to find that the physical and mental power to do so is gone. Enjoyment comes to them too late.

A Word to Husbands.

Love and appreciation are to a woman what dew and sunshine are to a flower. They freshen and brighten her whole life. They make her strong-hearted and keen-sighted in everything affecting the welfare of her home. They make her cherish her husband when the cares of life press heavily upon him; and to be a very providence to her children. To know that her husband loves her and is proud of her and believes in her; that even her faults are looked upon with tenderness; that her face, to one at least, is the fairest in all the world; that the heart which to her is the greatest and noblest, holds her sacred in his innermost recesses above all other women, gives a strength and courage and energy and sweetness and vivacity which all the wealth of the world could not bestow. Let a woman's life be pervaded with such an influence, and her heart and mind will never grow old but will blossom and sweeten and brighten in perpetual youth.

Our forefathers of three generations had a much more pleasant method of celebrating the glorious Fourth than the advanced urchin of to-day, with his hysterical vortex of booming, snapping, thundering, cracking and crashing sounds. Contrasted with the violent celebration of this up-to-date age, the Fourth of July of fifty or a hundred years ago presents a peaceful picture of hearty patriotism more in keeping with the real sentiment of the event than the present blustering fashion.

NOTES OF THE FARM.

DANGER TO HUMAN BEINGS FROM TUBERCULOSIS IN ANIMALS.

In the course of an article in the current issue of Farm and Fireside appears the following:

"When one considers that tuberculosis of animals represents an annual loss of $23,000,000 to American live-stock interests, he readily perceives that no decrease the ravages of this disease among cattle and hogs is the most vital problem of the modern live-stock industry. The devastations of this enervating and life-sapping plague are not confined to the lower animals for to-day there is no question about the fact that bovine tuberculosis can be transmitted to human beings, more especially in the case of children. Meat and milk consumed in the raw condition are virulent transporters of the dreaded tubercles. Statistics show that twenty per cent. of the 'white plague' patients under sixteen years of age contracted the disease through organisms coming from cattle. Thorough cooking of beef controls the disease by killing the bacilli.

"The tubercle bacillus succumbs when exposed to a temperature of 160 to 175 degrees Fahrenheit. The process of heating milk to 160 degrees Fahrenheit and then slowly cooling it to about 50 degrees is known as Pasteurization and efficiently controls milk-contamination by killing the organisms which transmit the scourge."

MILK IN HOT WEATHER.

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside appears the following:

"There is always trouble with milk and cream in hot weather. They will spoil if you give them half a chance. It is possible to keep them good, however, and on a dairy farm absolutely necessary.

"The bacteriologist says that in warm milk or cream the bacteria multiply every twenty or thirty minutes, so that before long our milk is a regular menagerie. It seems that the system is like that of the old horsehoe who charged a cent for the first nail and doubled the price each nail. The results soon amount to enormous figures.

"In actual practice, we are too busy to stop and count the bacteria. And if we tried, it would be pretty hard to see them unless they were magnified a few hundred times. But we know that the milk sours very quickly if it stands a while warm. We are able to make it stay sweet a long time—a couple of days if we wanted it to—by cooling it immediately after it is milked.

"Where there is much milk to handle, the best way is to use one of the regular coolers or aerators. They are not expensive, and they help wonderfully in keeping the milk in good condition. If there is only a little milk, it may be cooled pretty rapidly in pans set in cold water.

"People are deceived sometime in the length of time it takes to cool a big can of milk set in the cellar. Try it with a thermometer and see. It won't be all cool for nearly 12 hours. And that gives those germs a big start. Sudden and rapid cooling is the big secret in keeping milk and cream in summer."

The Supply of Live Stock is Short.

In an article in the current issue of Farm and Fireside appears the following:

"More agitation of the high price of meat is rife in the cities. Yellow journals, none too considerate with the truth, are filling their columns with attacks on everyone connected with the industry, from the farmer to the retail butcher. It some cities mobs have conducted window-smashing raids on retail shops and other rash deeds have been committed. These efforts, like all mob violence cannot have the effects desired. The prices are the result of the relation between supply and demand and cannot be changed until these change. The supply of live stock is short. The receipts at the market prove it. The price of grain has been high and roughage not obtainable. These, coupled with parched pastures last summer and a very severe winter, have not been productive of a large supply of live stock in the aggregate. At the same time that the supply decreased, the demand increased, as the population became greater. Time is the only cure of the evil."
